SUPPLEMENT TO REPORT NO.

In January 1948, the Chinese Communist authorities in Harbin announced the following anti-aircraft (air-raid) regulations:

- Each street and lu (街) (a village of 25 families) will be responsible for cleaning the snow from the air raid shelters which were built during the Manchukuo regime. The air raid shelters will be repaired and put in order.
- The Harbin City Garrison Headquarters will organize an anti-aircraft artillery corps which will cooperate closely with all other local anti-aircraft units.
- Anti-aircraft units will set up guards both day and night, ready for action. If enemy planes are discovered over the city they will open fire without waiting for an order.
- Civilian anti-aircraft units will be under the control of the city government which will direct the activities of the street offices.
- An order to strengthen the anti-aircraft training in all organizations will be circulated. Each person will be responsible for some practical work.
